KEY RISKS AND RISK MANAGEMENT

You should not invest in this Fund if you do not understand or are not comfortable with the accompanying risks.

Market/Price Risk:	The possibility for an investor to experience losses due to changes in the market prices of stocks/equities. It refers to the portfolio's exposure to marked-to-market valuation due to market price fluctuations of the stocks/equities.
Liquidity Risk:	The possibility for an investor to experience losses due to the inability to sell or convert assets into cash immediately or in instances where conversion to cash is possible but at a price that could result in a loss. This may be caused by low trading volume due to different reasons such as securities with small or few outstanding issues, absence of buyers and/or sellers (limited buy/sell activity) or underdeveloped capital market.
Credit Risk / Default Risk:	The possibility for an investor to experience losses due to a borrower's failure to pay principal and/or interest in a timely manner on instruments such as bonds, loans, or other forms of fixed income security which the borrower issued. This inability of the borrower or counterparty to make good on its financial obligations may have resulted from adverse changes in its financial condition thus, lowering credit quality of the security, and consequently lowering the price (market/price risk) which contributes to the difficulty in selling such security.
Foreign Exchange Risk:	The possibility for an investor to experience losses due to fluctuations in foreign exchange rates. The exchange rates depend upon a variety of global and local factors, e.g. interest rates, economic performance, and political developments.
Country Risk:	The possibility for an investor to experience losses arising from investments in securities issued by/in foreign countries due to the political, economic and social structures of these countries. There are risks in foreign investments due to the possible internal and external conflicts, currency devaluations, foreign ownership limitations and tax increases of the foreign country involved which are difficult to predict but must be taken into account in making such investments.
Index Tracking Risk:	The possibility for the Fund not being able to achieve a level of return that closely mirrors the index being tracked due to operational and fund management expenses.
Other Risks:	Your participation in the UITFs may be further exposed to the risk of any actual or potential conflicts of interest in the handling of in-house or related party transactions by Metrobank. These transactions may include own-bank deposits; purchase of own-institution or affiliate obligations (stocks, mortgages); purchase of assets from or sales to own institution, directors, officers, subsidiaries, affiliates or other related interests/parties; or purchases or sales between fiduciary/managed accounts.

The Fund invests only in high-credit quality assets which are evaluated using a rigorous internal scoring model required under the Trustee's accreditation process and BSP regulations. Internal risk limits and position limits together with regulatory exposure limits are monitored, reviewed and strictly adhered to on a daily basis. The Fund may also use financial derivatives solely for hedging risk exposures.

OUTLOOK AND STRATEGY

The fund increased by 3.29% for the month of June, as softer economic data propelled mega-cap technology names higher. The S&P500 remains tactically bullish in the short term; however, risk-off may emerge as the U.S. enters into the election cycle as seen in previous elections. The run-up in June had very weak market breadth, as companies participating in the mark-up continues to decline.

Disinflation can be expected to continue and inflation is likely to surprise to the downside in the 2nd half of 2024 as the rates remain restrictive.

In the June FOMC meeting, rates were kept unchanged at 5.25% to 5.5%, as the Fed wanted clearer evidence that inflation was in a clear downtrend. Fed Chair Powell stated they are managing 2 sided risks; namely bringing down inflation without significantly weakening the labor market. The Fed chief added that the U.S. economy and labor markets remain strong. As of the end of June, markets anticipate two cuts in 2024, with the pivot expected in September.

While the Fed maintains its hawkish pause, economic data continue to validate the weakness in Q1-2024. Despite the upward revision to the Final GDP print from 1.3% to 1.4%, personal consumption declined further from 2.0% to 1.5%, the first reading was 2.5%. It is important to note that upward price pressures may remain sticky in the short term, as spending related to the U.S. Presidential elections can be reflationary. Overall, a restrictive monetary environment will continue to put downward pressure on consumption and growth in 2H-2024. In June, Core CPI YoY was unchanged at 2.8% while unemployment ticked up to 4.0%, and recent data is hinting at a weaker GDP in Q2-2024.

The lag effect from the aggressive rate hikes continues to seep deeper into the economy as the Fed maintains a higher for longer stance, this will weaken personal consumption. Despite U.S. equity markets pushing to an intraday all-time high of 5,223 in June, a bifurcated economy allows the wealthy to participate in the market gains, while the majority of Americans spectate as rising costs push consumer sentiment to 68.2, a 4th straight monthly decline.

The S&P500 ended the first half higher with the Magnificent 5 (Nvidia, Apple, Google, Meta & Microsoft) carrying the entire market. In June, market breadth was extremely weak despite the "risk-on" phase as the strength rotated only among the mega-cap names. Entering 3Q-2024, volatility can be expected as the U.S. enters its election window while continuing insider selling from mega-cap executives validate the ongoing euphoric behavior of the market under the "AI theme", the mark-up has been priced to perfection. At the current juncture, 2Q-2024 earnings will be the main driver for the sustainability of the equity uptrend. Meanwhile, the bond market still expects a recession as the 2-year US Treasury (US2Y) vs. 10-year US Treasury (US10Y) yields remain inverted. The Dollar Index (DXY) increased 1.14% to 105.86 with strong resistance seen at 106 and strong support at 104, a break from either direction will result from a risk-on or risk-off market regime.

In the second half of 2024, push-pull in yields can be expected from weakening economic data and political uncertainties. The 2024 U.S. Presidential elections continue to add uncertainty to the inflation trajectory, but given recent developments, a mild recession scenario can no longer be ignored. A transition into a risk-off scenario can be expected in the coming quarters, it will either be inflationary or deflationary depending on fiscal action or non-actions by the Federal Government.

Currently, the fund is capitalizing on favorable dollar time deposit rates, offering a 90-day yield of 5.30%.
